

Hacker, Entrepreneur, Futurist & AI Pioneer

Harper Reed

Harper Reed is a technologist who predicts the future for a living. He is CEO of 2389 Research, a venture-backed AI company based in Chicago that builds multi-agent workflows for intelligent automation. His team explores how software gets made when AI agents write most of the code, and what that means for companies, teams, and jobs. Reed became known worldwide as CTO of Barack Obama's 2012 presidential campaign. He brought in engineers from companies such as Google, Twitter, and Facebook and built "Project Narwhal," a central data platform for the entire campaign. As CTO of Threadless.com, he was a pioneer...
