

Crisis communications expert and crisis manager specialising in cyber attacks

Janka Kreißl

Janka Kreißl is one of Germany's leading experts in crisis and cyber communication. Her professional career combines journalistic expertise, strategic communication experience and an exceptional ability to provide guidance in critical situations. As a teenager at the time of the fall of the Berlin Wall, she experienced first-hand what it means when structures disappear, stability is lost and there is a lack of direction – and this experience continues to shape her thinking to this day. She knows what it feels like to lose control – both personally and professionally. And she speaks about it: about crises and change, attitude...
