

Expert in AI, Innovation and the Future of Work

Dan Chuparkoff

Dan Chuparkoff makes complex technologies understandable and shows organizations how to use artificial intelligence to drive innovation, growth, and better collaboration. As a technology leader at Google, McKinsey, and Atlassian, he has spent more than three decades shaping technological change and guiding teams through transformation. His strength lies in translating technological developments into practical action. What can AI already do? Where are its limitations? And how can its capabilities complement human experience and judgment? Dan Chuparkoff provides clarity and practical approaches that help teams improve their performance and creativity. He combines the perspective of an experienced technology executive with the…
