

Mr. Wall-Street, USA-Expert & Journalist

Jens G. Korte

Jens Korte has been reporting from New York since 1999. That was in the midst of the Internet boom. Then the technology bubble burst and the USA slid into recession. The relationship between Europe and America has seen better times. But the U.S. remains the locomotive for the global economy. Jens Korte: Who will dominate world politics in the future and what challenges will this pose for Europe? The terrorist attacks in 2001, the boom in the financial markets, the scandals in the 2000s, the big crash in 2008, the following upswing, the energy boom and crash, the election of…
