

Swiss sports reporter, TV presenter, show host and author

Beni Thurnheer

Beni Thurnheer was discovered in 1973, when he was chosen out of 1600 competitors taking part in a youth sports reporter contest staged by the Swiss Broadcasting Corporation. He spent the early years of his broadcasting career working in radio. In 1975, he made his first television appearance as the presenter of the 'Sportkalender' format. With time, he presented virtually all Swiss-German sports programmes ('Sport am Wochenende', 'Sportpanorama', 'Sport aktuell'.) As a live commentator, his main focus was on football, with regular detours into ice hockey (around a dozen World Cups and 21 Spengler Cups), alpine skiing (including the 1982...
