

Futurist

Siv Helen Hesjedal

Siv Helen Hesjedal is a professional futurist, sociologist, and development planner with close to 20 years' international experience in foresight, public policy and regional development. She has helped numerous public sector leaders develop future-proof strategies and guided them through organizational change processes. As a passionate and experienced futures researcher, she uses her skills of asking the right questions and looking at alternative futures to successfully shape business models for the next 15 years. After almost two decades in South Africa, she now works in Europe and supports the futures research of the Thinktank Themis Foresight with her experience and passion...
